INDIGNANT OVER ACT.

Of Some One In Decorating Bust in Tufts Chapel.

Boston, March 18.—When the Tufts students filed into chapel for the morning service yesterday, they were astonished and filled with glee to see the large bronze bust of Dr. Alonzo A. Miner, second president of the college and one of the most noted Universalists of his day, decorated in a ridiculous fashion.

Upon the head was a dilapidated straw hat, cocked at a jaunty angle. A rubber collar had been placed about the neck, with a red handkerchief as a shirt front, surmounted by a large bright green tie.

The bust has a place in the chapel in plain view of all. When President Hamilton entered to conduct the service, it caught his eye at once. He gave one glance at the decorations, and then proceeded with the services, making no comment. Not so the undergraduates. It was a turbulent chapel and the students gave more attention to the bust than to President Hamilton.

Afterward the janitor removed the decorations.

Later in the day the college authorities began an investigation. They are very indignant over the affair, and it is safe to say that if the guilty students can be found, they will be expelled.

RECOVERS HIS HORSE.

Rutland Man Found His Son Had Stolen and Sold It.

Rutland, March 18.—William Murray of South street has recovered the horse, which was taken from his stable March 6.

It develops that the animal was stolen by his son, but the father will probably not press the charge of horse stealing. It was bought by Clio D. Morse, who had no reason to suspect that the younger Murray came by the animal dishonestly.

Morse later sold it to Benjamin Hayes of West Haven, who later learned that the horse was stolen by the officers and brought it back to this city. Policeman S. C. Warren found the wagon, which was taken with the horse, in the rear of the Morse stable on Center street.

Candidate Fleetwood's Dates.

Morrisville, March 18.—E. G. Fleetwood will give an address before the Winnetka Valley young at East Montpelier March 21, and March 22 he will speak in Irasburg on "The Vermont of the Future." Mr. Fleetwood has been invited to speak to the ladies of Grand Isle county on the tax law March 22.

Current Comment

Not Unfitted.

Comment is made quite extensively because Ex-Congressman Hastings has been called upon to act as lecturer for Brattleboro and he is receiving much praise therefor. That is all right, but it is nothing remarkable. Morrisville called Ex-Congressman Powers to the same position a couple of times and he performed his duty well and gave his hearers the benefit of much experience and ability. Simply because a man has been a congressman does not unfit him to become a good citizen and perform his duties.—Morrisville News and Citizen.

The Better Farming Train.

The plan of State Commissioner of Agriculture O. L. Martin, co-operating with the agricultural department of the university of Vermont, in running a special train over the line of the Rutland railroad from Alburgh to Bennington and Bellows Falls, is an indication of progress and deserves hearty commendation. This train, carrying forestry, dairying and other exhibits, and provided with facilities for lectures at the various stations along the route, affords an excellent opportunity for obtaining a knowledge of modern agricultural methods. Similar trains have been operated in Massachusetts and in the western states with good results.

Vermonters ought to know more about forestry, about the value of fertilizers, about the most profitable methods of stock feeding. They should learn as much as possible concerning the spraying of fruit trees and potato vines. The contrast between high grade and low grade cows will possess an educational value.

There is no attempt in all this to convey the impression that farmers know nothing of farming or are unable to make money in modern agriculture. It is true, however, that such demonstrations show how better and more profitable methods of farming may be conducted, and they should be welcomed. Some farmers, who think they know all that may be learned about their business, will scoff at the plan, while others will gladly hail it as an opportunity for learning more about the science of agriculture, which is not easily or speedily mastered. The hope of Vermont lies with the latter class of farmers.—Montpelier Journal.

Burlington's New Hotel.

Burlington is apparently assured the building of a new Hotel Burlington, no matter what the outcome of any litigation over the property may be. Mr. Powell has claimed he wanted to build a hotel, provided he secures the property, and we print elsewhere a statement by E. P. Woodbury, stating that he and C. L. Woodbury have purchased the site for the purpose of erecting a hotel, double the capacity of the old fireproof, modern, and up-to-date in all
